

Project Information

Project: Engrade Quizzes

Internal Release Number: 1.0

Release Audience:

Intended Product License: GPL (The GNU General Public License)

Related Documents: Project proposal > Target audience and benefits
Plan > Resource needs
Glossary

Ownership of Intellectual Property

Component	Owner	License	Status	Comments
Product Name	Engrade.com	Trademark	Registered	We must use "(R)", not "(TM)"
Database	Hipp, Wyrick & Company, Inc.	Public domain	In compliance
Encrypt library

Regulatory Compliance

Type	Regulation	Status	Comments

Legal Issues Checklist

Does the development organization hold trademarks on the product name and any other names used in marketing the product?

No. The product name is registered by Engrade.com. We will keep all copyright reserved.

Does the development organization hold or license patents on intellectual property that is used in the product?

Yes. We have to keep our technologies in reserve.

Does the development organization hold or license copyrights on source code that is used in the product?

Yes. We write all code for our product.

For each component in the product, is that component being used in a way that complies with its license?

Yes. The components are produced in that way.

For each piece of copyrighted data in the product, is that data being used in a way that complies with its license?

Yes. We laid all copyrighted code in compliance with their license.

Was any component or data produced by another organization under contract?

No.

Does the product use technologies that are under export control?

No.

Does the product need to meet industry-specific regulations?

No.

Does the product satisfy corporate policies (e.g., on privacy and security)?

Yes. Because no corporate policies are in effect, no policies apply, which subsequently means the product satisfies all existing corporate policies. For more details related to privacy and security, please see the tables above.